

MASS IN A STABLE

The former stable, now the Catholic Church of St. Maurice near Ft. Lauderdale, which parishioners working in their spare time have cleared of stalls and hayloft.

Palms shade the stone building, above, once a stable, now, below, a church filled each Sunday with parishioners attending mass.

What was once a thoroughbred racehorse stable, near Fort Lauderdale, Fla., is now the Catholic Church of St. Maurice. A wooden altar occupies the former tack room. The clear voice of St. Maurice's pastor, Father David Russell, booms through the rafters and echoes off the walls at two masses each Sunday.

Father Russell arrived here in June 1970 to found the parish of St. Maurice. The cheerful young priest and his stable church attract parishioners of all ages. Retirees sit side by side on borrowed chairs with long-haired teen-agers, while a pretty miniskirted girl plays her guitar and sings a hymn from the altar during communion.

Working in their spare time, the parishioners themselves have dismantled the stalls and hayloft. There is still more "restoring" to be done to the stable, however. And construction is underway to turn the area behind the stable into a parking lot.

Father Russell hopes the simplicity and honesty of the church in the stable will have a wide appeal. "After all," he says, "the first church was a stable. We are kneeling at the door."

Parishioners meet for coffee and donuts in the garden outside the stable church after each mass on Sundays.

Father Russell takes time to go around and have a personal word with everyone after services.

Retirees stand side by side with long-haired teen-agers at mass before an altar where the tack room used to be.

Mrs. Roy Taylor then entertained the 17 members present with a beautiful Christmas story "The Littlest Shepherd", and the meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Carter Russell, President.

"Found" Life Insurance Policy

When a man dies leaving life insurance, notice of his death should of course be given to the insurance company.

But suppose the family simply doesn't know the policy exists. If they find out about it weeks, months, or even years later, could they still collect? Or have they lost their rights because of the delay?

Insurance policies usually say that the notice of death must be given "immediately" or promptly. Sometimes they even fix a specific number of days as a limit. Nevertheless, most courts are willing to overlook this requirement if there is a reasonable excuse for the delay.

In one case, a woman had never been told about an insurance policy bought by her husband's employer. Several months after his death, she happened to find out about the insurance—and put in her claim at once.

Even though the policy called for "immediate" notice of death, the court held she could still collect. The judge said "immediate" in these circumstances, meant right after she learned of the policy's existence.

On the other hand, courts do recognize the importance of promptness to the insurance company. The company should have a fair chance, if it so desires, to inquire into the cause of death before too much time has gone by.

Accordingly, a delay due to negligence will not be excused. One widow just didn't bother to go through the "junk drawer" in which many of the family papers were kept. When she finally found an insurance policy there, years later, her claim was turned down because of her own negligence.

Even if there is a legitimate excuse, the delay may be so extreme that the policy will lapse anyhow. Take this case:

An insurance company was started to receive a claim for a death that had occurred 33 years earlier. The widow did have a plausible explanation for her tardiness, but a court ruled she could not collect anyway.

"Witnesses may have died, memories faded," said the court. "The claim has grown stale."

George Rapee has won about every trophy there is, including the President's Cup for nonmasters, which he won with Curt Jacobson back in 1936. Here is a hand played by George in that event.

The bidding is JACOBY MODERN because we aren't sure just how George and Curt worked their way up to the heart slam. Remember that, in JACOBY MODERN, the two-spade response is artificial and shows from 7-9 high-card points.

If you look at the North-South cards, it would appear that eventually George would have to guess whether or not to rise with the king of clubs after leading a club from his hand.

Young George found a way to get West to rise with the ace of clubs when the club was finally led.

He started playing out three trumps after winning the first trick with dummy's ace of spades. Curt asked, "Don't you know trumps are out?" George replied, "No harm being sure."

Then he cashed diamonds and discarded dummy's eight of spades.

West had what he thought was a complete count of George's hand. He knew about six hearts and four diamonds and the spade played at trick one. Obviously, George's other two cards carried a club and another spade. Hence, when George led the 10 of clubs, West went right up with his ace.

Playing in a major championship today we doubt if George's play would work. The expert sitting West might wonder why George played that extra round of trumps and figure out a low-club play would be in order.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

COMMON WORRY, THESE MODERN DAYS

Dear Helen:
Recently two people I know at school lost one of their parents. It started me to thinking what life would be like without mine.

A lot of kids aren't too close to their folks, and even worse, the parents don't seem to care. It isn't that way in our family.

My main concern is my Mom. She's 50, acts and looks much younger—and smokes nearly two packs a day! When the anti-cigarette commercials come on, she just laughs and lights up. I can't get through to her that maybe they're true. I've even thought of trying to bribe our doctor into scaring her, but she'd probably smoke even if she thought she was dying. I don't say much because it sounds like nagging, but . . .

I'm scared, because she coughs a little now (I don't think she even notices the change in her voice or breathing) and I don't want her to wait until it's too late. How can I make her listen? —I LIKE MY MA

Dear ILMM:

It's probably not much consolation, but a great many young people share your worry these days. On the more hopeful side: Many elders have quit smoking at their children's insistence.

Perhaps your mother will too, if you not only enlist her doctor's help but let her know how truly concerned you are. I can't believe that any loving parent would brush off a letter like yours. Show it to her, and let me know the results. Good Luck! —H.

Dear Helen:

I guess this is a sorta new problem. A guy I like used to go with a girl who had an abortion last year. It's known all around school. He says he probably wasn't the father, but she says different. And, of course, my parents say "Disgusting!" He isn't wild—he just got involved foolishly.

I'd like to date him, as I know he's a nice guy. How can I persuade my mother, when she gets uptight and red-faced even at the word "abortion"? —PEGGY

Dear Peggy:

Mothers are like that. . . until they realize that, if you gave no one a second chance, you'd soon have no friends at all.

This boy can win her over, if he cares to try. And if he doesn't—maybe he's not the right guy for you. —H.

Dear Helen:

I have a young brother who is a paper boy. It's a great job and we're proud of him, but not of some customers who enjoy playing "fool the paper boy."

He is supposed to collect on Saturdays and people know this. But they "don't have the change," or won't answer the bell.

Even in a blizzard, they make him wait at the door (never inviting him inside) while they search various purses for his money. These are the same ones who call and demand "justice" if their paper is half an hour late—in the worst storm of the season.

Maybe you'll print this to remind these inconsiderate persons that the fellow who delivers their paper is just a boy—usually not much over 13, and he works hard for very little. He also catches more colds than most. If they took his route just one day, they'd perhaps change their tunes. —OLDER SISTER

Reagan Spent $3 Million

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan spent about $3 million in his successful 1970 re-election campaign.

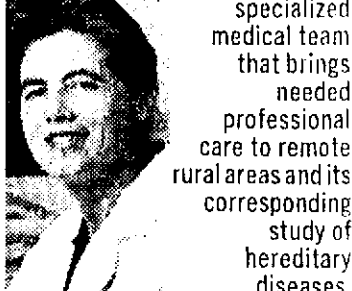

Contributors to the Republican incumbent's campaign fund listed in a report filed Tuesday included oil billionaire J. Paul Getty and entertainers Frank Sinatra and Bob Hope.

Reagan's Democratic challenger, Jesse Unruh, reported an $873,352 outlay.

Sweater: Versatility Itself

By JUDY LOVE

Everywhere you turn there's something new to knit, crochet, embroider or handwork. It's simply wonderful all the choices that are available today. But through all this abundance, there's one great classic that appeals to you knitters above everything else—the sweater.

Here's a sweater that's every stitch today; it clings ever so gently, which is exactly right for the look of body-consciousness that's important. It complements pants, skirts—no matter where your hemline stops—and it's even right with knickers.

This sweater features an unusual but simple ribbing pattern—wide ribs riding high above the bustline, then worked into a flat stockinette across the chest. Ribbed sleeves are set in, and a high, wide and ribbed turtleneck collar give this classic a look that's both feminine and sporty.

Directions to knit this smart pullover are available in sizes 12 to 16; use No. 7 needles, and depending upon the size you knit, you need from 18 to 24 skeins of 4-ply Coats & Clark's Red Heart Knitting Worsted. Light olive is a lovely shade, but you'll find a wide range of colors, from deep winter tones to more pale shades.

To get instructions for this casual pullover sweater, send 50 cents to Sitchin's Time, c/o your local newspaper, Radio City Station, Box 503, New York, N.Y. 10021. Ask for leaflet S305 and include your name, address and zip code.

Knit Knacks

Turn your needles onto this short guide to make a muffler that's a perfect stocking stuffer. Big skates—and little ones will wear it with warm pride. Pick a bright, winter day color.

Easy Winter Muffler: 6 skeins 4-ply yarn, No. 6 needles.

Nixon Gives to Wichita Fund

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — President Nixon has contributed $500 to a fund for survivors of a Colorado plane crash that killed 31 players, officials and boosters of the Wichita State University football team.

Announcing this Tuesday, Arvell Smith, a fund spokesman, said Carroll Rosenbloom, owner of the Baltimore Colts football team, had sent a check for $50,000.

Rosenbloom also gave $50,000 to Marshall University of Huntington, W.Va., where another plane crash killed 75 persons, including 37 Marshall football players.

Swiss Not to Handle Prize

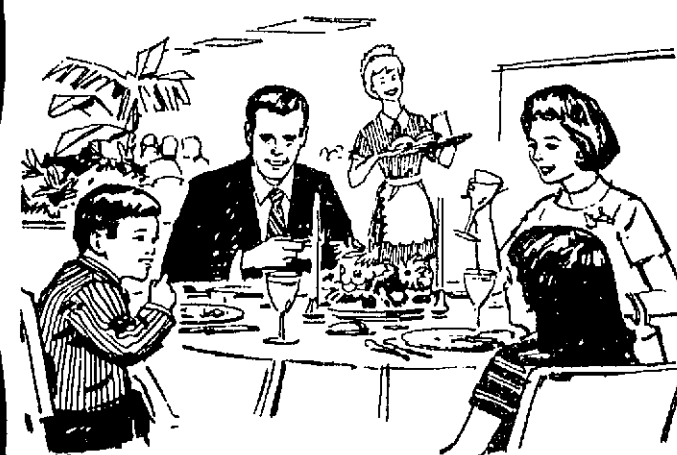

MOSCOW (AP) — Russian novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn will have to figure out some way of picking up his Nobel Prize for literature without involving the Swedish Embassy in the Soviet capital.

An embassy spokesman dispelled speculation that the prize might be handed over here Thursday—when the main Nobel ceremony is being conducted in Stockholm.

The spokesman said Tuesday he did not know what other arrangements Solzhenitsyn, whose works are in official Soviet disfavor, might have in mind for picking up the $80,000 prize money.

Solzhenitsyn originally planned to go to Stockholm for the award, but changed his mind, saying he feared the Soviet Union would not permit him to return to his homeland.

Forrest City Blacks Claim Intimidation

FORREST CITY, Ark. (AP)

—The Rev. Emory Washington of Forrest City, a member of the state Board of Education, says a group of parents concerned about recent reports at Forrest City High School is to meet today with the school principal, Oscar Collins, to discuss the situation.

Washington said Thursday that some Negro students at Forrest City High School had reported they were being intimidated by some members of the faculty. He said some students had reported that some faculty members had said things to them like "we're watching you," and "you'll do something and we'll catch you."

"If these things are true, then we would like for them to cease," the Rev. Mr. Washington said.

A group of about 20 parents and concerned citizens had requested a meeting with Collins and school Supt. William Irving. The Rev. Mr. Washington identified Lonell Anderson as leader of the group.

He said Anderson met with Collins for about 90 minutes Thursday and that Collins agreed to meet with the parents. He said Anderson intends to present six points of inquiry. They are:

—"Is it a policy of the school to permit certain school officials and or teachers to intimidate students who are in trouble with the school system? If not then we request such action cease."

—"Why aren't the school's disciplining officers not able to handle their phobias without the law enforcement officers presence? We submit that the presence of policemen puts undue stress and tension on our school atmosphere."

—"Is it a policy of the school system in general and this school specifically to allow teachers to push and pull girls or any student for that matter?"

—"Is it a policy of this school for certain male teachers to get involved with tussling and wrestling situations, in other words fights, with students?"

—"On what information given did the local news media base its assumption in yesterday's paper that the girl was apparently cut by a piece of thrown glass?"

Bobcats and Ladycats Take Foreman

BILL MOORE
Star Sports Writer

Last night at Foreman, the Hope Bobcats and Ladycats both won their games easily to pull their respective records higher.

Starting with the girls game, the Ladycats trampled the Gatorettes, 58-31, for their third win against three losses.

After Foreman hit an early 3-0 lead, Dee Singleton hit two straight field goals for a 4-3 Ladycat lead. After Belinda Easts free throw with 0:06 left, Hope led 12-6.

Now moving into the second quarter, after stalling for a time, Singleton hit the net twice, with Janet McCain scoring a two pointer also, and with 2:55 left in the first half Hope held a 20-8 margin.

Trading two baskets apiece, Singleton's and Betty Rodden's the Ladycats went to the dressing room at Halftime, leading 24-12.

Coming back out, Hope took the tipoff and immediately Singleton hit a free throw and McCain a basket. With 2:43 left in the third period, McCain drilled in a free throw for a 32-13 lead and the rest of the quarter saw Foreman, on the shooting of Alice McGraw, score six points to trail the Ladycats, 34-20, with one period to play.

Outscoring the Gatorettes 28-11 in the last quarter, the Ladycats had the starting three forwards to hit double figures, while the guards continued to be outstanding.

Rodden hit a jumpshot with 6:41 to play and three free shots by McCain gave Hope a 37-22 lead.

After each team exchanged a few points, McCain unloaded seven straight points as Hope pulled ahead 48-28, with only 2:14 to play.

Rodden punched in for points and McCain two for a 56-30 margin with only 24 seconds showing on the clock. Fifteen seconds later East hit a layup for the final score and a well deserved victory.

Those guards who did a real fine job are Cindy Hollis, Betty Honeycutt, Janice Hobson, and Judy Reyenga.

McCain led the scoring with 20 points, Singleton hitting 18, Rodden getting 15, and East bagging five. McGraw led Foreman with 12.

Moving to a wild second game, the Bobcats romped over the Gators, 98-58, and a present 4-2 seasonal record.

After Foreman scored first, senior Parker tied the game up with 6:03 to go and then the score saw-sawed until John Dudley hit a layup with 4:19 to play in the first period, for 7-6 lead.

Lynn Norton and Powell, with the exception of Bill Rowland's free throw, did all of the remaining scoring in the period as Hope led 16-11, at the start of the second quarter.

Hitting a hot streak, the Gators tied the score at 19 all and later at 23 all, but two free throws by Steve Harris with 3:56 to go in the half, put Hope ahead to stay.

Then the Bobcats reeled off ten straight points, with David Briggs accounting for six, to take a 35-24 lead with 1:22 left.

Briggs and Norton hit the last two goals and at half the Bobcats led 39-20 using the rebounding to keep control of the ball.

Hitting an opening cold streak in the second half, Briggs popped the net to start a 13 point shooting spree with 6:20 left in the period, with all five starters getting some points.

Another spree, with Norton and Powell getting four points each, gave Hope a commanding 63-33 margin with 1:12 left. The quarter ended with the Bobcats way out in front, 68-35, after Rowland hit two charity shots with 26 seconds left.

Entering the final period, the reserves began coming in and they hit 30 points while stopping Foreman with 23.

In less than a minute Charles Ratliff hit six points and Buddy Ingram two, for a 76-41 margin and after Tim White, Ronnie Massanelli, and James Bradley all connected, Hope led 86-51, with 3:00 remaining on the clock.

A free shot by Roger Newton and two buckets by Massanelli

Mexican Is Favored to Retain Title

TIJUANA, Mex. (AP)—Featherweight champion Vincent Saldivar of Mexico City risks—and is favored to retain—his version of the world featherweight title tonight against challenger Kumiaki Shibata of Tokyo.

At stake in the 15-round international attraction in this Mexico-California border city is Saldivar's World Boxing Council crown. Undisputed king of the 126-pound division before his voluntary retirement in October, 1967, the 27-year-old ring idol of his country rules a 10-8 favorite.

Shibata, 25, is ranked No. 4

Handicapped Team Remains Unbeaten

By KEN HOSKINS
Associated Press Writer
DENVER (AP) — Most football players occasionally take a water break, but members of the Asthmanauts squad head straight for the nebulizer broncodilator.

That's because each of the 23 boys, aged 9 to 13, who make up the flag football team at Children's Asthma Institute and Hospital here suffers from chronic, steadily worsening asthma.

But this year, to the surprise of everyone but themselves, the medically-troubled squad blazed to an unbeaten record over eight healthy teams in their suburban league.

"When the going gets bad and you get tensed up, you really get asthma," says Stephen Wysocki, a 12-year-old quarterback from Utica, N.Y., who scored 110 of the team's total 223 points.

That is when the nebulizer broncodilator—a medicated mist to aid breathing—comes into action.

"When asthma sets in during a game," said Jim Haddinger, institute recreation director, "they come to the sidelines to inhale from the nebulizer. Usually, they go right back in."

The biggest problem, however, is always the last-minute discovery of who will be available to play.

"Our major fear," Haddinger said, "is that on the day of a game our best players will be hospitalized."

The players, who represent 13 states from as far away as California, Ohio, Massachusetts and New Jersey, live in cottages at the institute along with about 90 other girls and boys. When asthma disables them, they enter the hospital for treatment.

Although Stephen made it through the season without the sideline nebulizer, he and two teammates received their post-season trophies at bedside.

But the Asthmanauts aren't winded yet, with football polished off. They plan to take a deep breath and launch into the basketball season.

Good Grammar, Good Coaching? Players Rarely Have Both

NEW YORK—(NEA)—A parent recently complained on a Steubenville, Ohio, radio talk show that the local high school football coach not only used bad plays but, throwing salt on the wound, he used bad grammar, too. In support of the coach, some members of the student body painted a huge banner which they displayed at the next game. The banner read: "What Do You Want? Good Grammar or Good Coaching!"

Assuming that Coach Abe Bryant's tongue did indeed trip over restrictive clauses and subjunctives, how serious is that? Particularly since his teams have been successful in one of the country's toughest football conferences.

To determine the cause and effects of grammar on the gridiron, Vince Lombardi's pregame locker-room Super Bowl speech (Jan. 14, 1968) was read by the eminent grammarian, Dr. Bergen Evans of Northwestern University. (Evans confessed he had never heard of Lombardi—"Did you say Lombardi?"—before this).

LOMBARDI: It's difficult for me to say anything. Anything I could say would be repetitious. This is our twenty-third game this year. I don't know of anything else I could tell this team. Boys, I can only say this to you: Boys, you're a good football team.

EVANS: So far, this sounds like the king's English—if the king had stayed sober. Of course, the coach contradicts himself by saying anything he says will be repetitious, then proceeds to be repetitious. But rhetoric has to go in for repetition. Besides, you begin any effective speech by denying what you're going to say. The Supreme Court does it all the time.

LOMBARDI: You are a proud football team. You are the world champions. You are the champions of the National Football League for the third time in a row, for the first time in the history of the National Football League.

EVANS: When you see it in print, there may be a confusion in the prepositional clauses. But writing is stodgy and pompous, while speech is mercurial and improvisational. You see, everybody speaks well, or they couldn't survive. If you get your point across, then you're speaking effectively. Lombardi succeeds here.

LOMBARDI: That's a great thing to be proud of.

EVANS: School teachers have been earning their living for years by frightening people into not ending a sentence with a preposition. But I love what Winston Churchill said when he was corrected on it: "That is something up with which I shall not put."

LOMBARDI: But let me just say this: All the glory, everything that you've had, everything that you've won is going to be small in comparison to winning this one. This is a great thing for you. You're the only team maybe in the history of the National Football League to ever have this opportunity to win the Super Bowl twice. Boys, I tell you I'd be so proud of that I just fill up with myself.

EVANS: He mixes the subjunctive with the indicative, but is it confusing to the ear? No. American people are the most scared people in the world about using their language. We don't have an aristocracy or a peasantry. Ours is an economically upward-tending society, and this middle-class society has transferred the sacred chalice

Pick the Highest Mountain In Every State--Then Climb

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Time is running out for professional climber Mitch Michaud. He has less than two months to accomplish his goal—to climb the highest peak in every state in one year.

Michaud, a member of the Himalayan advisory staff, hopes to focus attention on mountaineering by being the first person to climb the 50 peaks in one year.

"The high mountains are the last of the pioneer areas which offer man a true physical challenge," said the bearded, suntanned, Oregon mountaineer. "Rough terrain, plus forces of nature, make every hill an adventure."

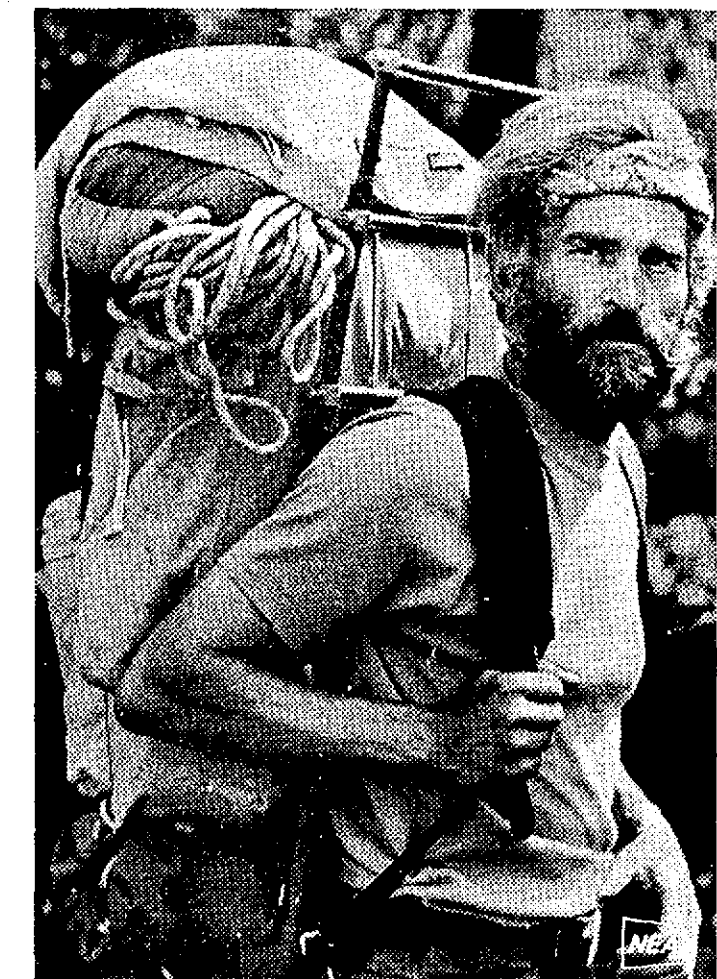

"Many people or looking for the challenge of hiking and climbing," Michaud said. "A family may just want to pack into the nearest park wilderness for a weekend, or a young couple may want to spend one night climbing a 5,000-foot peak. But everybody's getting into the act."

Proving his point, Michaud pointed out the large numbers of young hikers who have accompanied him to different peaks.

"I notified hiking groups that I'd be making the climb and I was flooded with letters," Michaud said. "The Girl Scouts hooked on, too. I've taken Scouts with me on most of the lower peaks."

He has had many adventures along the way:

At Campbell Hill in Ohio, he had an armed guard because of a radar station on the 1,500-foot summit. At Charles Mound in Illinois, it cost him $1 to climb. That's because the highest point in the state is in the middle of a cornfield and the farmer who owns the land has set a fee for permission to reach the top of the hill.

In Arkansas, he had to climb two peaks because there's a running argument as to which is higher. He climbed Magazine Mountain at 2,823 feet and also Blue Mountain, said to be slightly over 2,800 feet.

In one state, he turned rescuer. He was climbing Mt. Katahdin in Maine during a rainstorm and found a party of four teen-agers accompanied by an adult. Two of the youths were suffering from exposure. Michaud canceled his trip to escort the party back down to campgrounds at the base of the mountain. He returned a week later to scale the peak.

Michaud has made the adventure a family affair. He has been accompanied on most of his trips by his wife, Mary Emma; his son, Peter, 19, and his daughters, Halle, 17, and Wende, 15. He also takes Tyn Yvette, 1, whom he pops into a baby carrier pack on his back and carries along on short climbs.

LOMBARDI: I just get bigger and bigger and bigger. It's not going to come easy. This is a club that's gonna hit you. They're gonna try to hit you and you got to take it out of them.

EVANS: "Gonna" is a common colloquialism. A word like "going" has two "g's" and the formative tendency is for the tongue to elide one of those two consonants. The word "pilgrim" had a similar growth as "gonna." Pilgrim is from "peregrine," meaning, traveler. The "R's" in peregrine were too hard to say, so our mouths just said the hell with it.

LOMBARDI: You got to be forty tigers out there.

EVANS: Technically, the compound verb should be "should be" or "must be" or "ought to be." He could also have said, "It is essential that you aspire with feline ferocity." Some impact, that.

LOMBARDI: That's all. Just hit. Just run. Just block and tackle. If you do that, there's no question what the answer's going to be in this ball game. Keep your poise. Keep your poise. You've faced them all. There's nothing they can show you out there you haven't faced a number of times.

EVANS: He did drop the pronoun "that" after "nothing." "That" introduces a noun clause. But really, a football coach to be effective in his environment just cannot be hoity-toity.

LOMBARDI: Right?

EVANS: Correct.

IRA BERKOW

What Difference The Menagerie?

By IRA BERKOW,
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Once you sit down and ruminate about it, the idea that Pepper Wilson can so easily switch from the Cincinnati Royals to the Cincinnati Zoo is not all that surprising.

Wilson was general manager of the Royals through the days of Oscar Robertson and Jerry Lucas. Recently, there has been a sort of cleaning of the Augean Stables and Robertson, Lucas and Pepper Wilson have all departed the Royals. Wilson is now public relations director for the Cincinnati Zoo. And contrary to the belief of some cynics, there are minor differences between a basketball team and a menagerie.

"I've noticed," said Wilson, "that none of the animals have agents who demand $100,000 for an animal whose talents are only worth $10,000."

"Also, the animals here don't have as great an appetite as some of the players." He noted that some players in their gastronomic lust have chewed tablecloths after their third dessert; but elephants, for example, outdo that by devouring a bale and a half a day of alfalfa hay, carrots, kale, lettuce, oranges, apples, bananas.

Now, there are some basketball players (Cazzie Russell, for example) who are quite dotty about health foods. That is, wheat germ, coconut champagne, papaya juice and brown rice have become their staples for building healthy bodies many ways.

Wilson noted that gorillas and monkeys receive a similar kind of treatment from the institution's dietitians. You see, those animals are vegetarians, and have been even before the NBA Players' Association demanded an increase in meal money on the road.

So every day Wilson's new primates dine on rice bread, especially baked for them with rice, raisins, pabum and Karo syrup. But infrequently, they will take a munch of cooked meat, in the way Cazzie will sneak out in the dead of night and gulp down a chocolate egg cream.

One of the thrilling sights in the NBA is the confrontation of two stars going head to head against each other. Wilson missed this, for awhile, until he found out that, hell, the male ibex do it every day.

"They're mountain goats and for enjoyment they stand around and lock horns and bang their heads," said Wilson. "There is also a great deal of grunting and groaning, almost like the NBA."

"Except the sound is a little more musical here. In pro basketball the noise is more sustained."

Wilson's contention that he has "the best cat house" in the country would surely perk up the ears of many athletes who know a good feline when they see one. Proudly, Wilson said that the Cincinnati Zoo's collection of lions, tigers, leopards (particularly Persian leopards), pumas and lynxes is the finest around.

He emphasized that some of the beasts in cages are as temperamental as those bipeds on the court. Why, when baby gorillas were born to King Tut and his mate Penelope, and to Hatari and his helpmeet Mahari, the offspring were taken to Good Samaritan Hospital and cared for by Registered Nurses and actually placed in diapers.

Hatari, by the way, is a friendly brute, perhaps even more domesticated than some forwards of Wilson's acquaintance. Hatari has been known to slap the zoo director playfully on the shoulder as he walks past the cage. King Tut, on the other paw, is someone whose path you stay out of—unless you're Penelope.

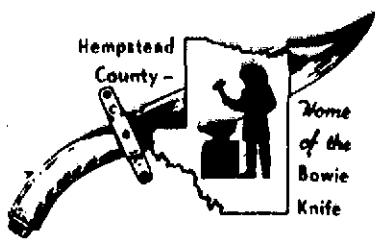

Wilson has been at the zoo for about a year now, but says he still misses some of that other action across town.

"You might say I've had cold-turkey withdrawal," said Wilson.

Standby Draft a Possibility

SAIGON (AP) — Selective Service Director Curtis W. Tarr said today that the United States will never be able to fight a war with an all-volunteer army and that his agency is making all its plans on the basis of a "standby draft."

Ending a five-day visit with enlisted men in the battle zones of Vietnam, Tarr suggested that the armed services could possibly convert to all-volunteer status after all U.S. forces are withdrawn from combat duty. But if other combat situations arise, he said, the Selective Service would again have to rely on the draft.

"I think it's the element of combat we need to eliminate in order to make an all-volunteer force feasible," he said.

Tarr said that during his talks with draftees, he found "a great deal of frustration, particularly with those who have a college education. I do come away from this trip with even stronger feelings that we should ask Congress to phase out deferments based on education."

If young men have to be drafted at all, Tarr said, they would be "better off if they are called sooner." He said college graduates he had talked with agreed.

"Almost unanimously," he said, "these young men said it would have been much better if they had gone in just out of high school. You can be educated much beyond a job."

As the United States phases out its combat activities in Vietnam, Tarr said, the men in Vietnam will have more time to complain about personal matters.

"The further we go in the wind-down," he said, "the more morale will be a problem."

Tarr, who earlier visited U.S. servicemen in South Korea, the Philippines and Thailand, said he made his trip in preparation for congressional testimony next year, when he will have to discuss President Nixon's powers to induct men into the armed services.

HEAD 'EM UP and move 'em out. With thousands of pushcart operators working in New York City, it would seem a simple matter for an unlicensed peddler to slip in unnoticed. Not so. Here, a patrolman shepherds a line of such operators to a local police station where most were given summonses for obstructing sidewalks.

PUTTING THE CHILL to milk which otherwise would spoil in India's high heat. Dairy farmers use a crude cooling process of placing tins of boiled milk into river's icy Himalaya water and stirring with their hands until it becomes cold enough to withstand the 20-mile trip to a dairy plant in New Delhi. Storage of milk and milk products in India is a big problem because modern freezing plants are rare.

Offers Funds for Displaced Teachers

By G. C. THELEN Jr.
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration, which has declined to challenge the legality of wholesale firing and demotion of Negro teachers in the South, offered instead today $3.2 million for retraining the displaced educators.

The aid announcement by the U.S. Office of Education coincided with its release of a report indicating discrimination rather than inadequate training is the primary problem facing black teachers in the South.

"Retraining is the solution that many, including officials in the U.S. Office of Education, are suggesting," said the report prepared for the education office by the nonprofit Race Relations Information Center, Nashville, Tenn.

"To many blacks, that kind of thinking is merely swallowing whole the justification of discrimination advanced by many Southern school boards," the report said.

The report—like others issued recently by the National Education Association—found black teachers and principals in the South have been displaced in the wake of school desegregation and elimination of all-Negro schools.

"Hundreds of them have been demoted, dismissed outright, denied new contracts or pressured into resigning, and the new teachers hired to replace them include fewer and fewer blacks," said the center, successor to the well-regarded Southern Education Reporting Service.

The Nixon administration has not brought any action against Southern districts for alleged discrimination in firing and demoting black teachers.

Complaints to Bring Bubble Bath Changes

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Food and Drug Administration officials say two major manufacturers of bubble bath for children have agreed to reformulate their products in response to complaints of irritation and urinary tract infection.

FDA spokesmen said the two firms—Purax and Gold Seal—agreed to remove from their bubble baths what one official described as an industrial-strength detergent.

Laboratory tests of the detergent had failed to produce reactions in experimental animals, but the agency pressed the firms for the formula change on the basis of complaints from doctors and consumers.

The FDA concluded that "even though the lab tests didn't show anything, the difficulties do exist and therefore something ought to be done about it," said Dr. Alfred Weisler, chief of the FDA's cosmetic division.

The products to be reformulated are Purax' "Bubble Club Fun Bath" and Gold Seal's "Mr. Bubble." Both are listed as among the most widely sold brands, with Mr. Bubble sales estimated at 25 million boxes last year.

Gold Seal vice president Robert Gale said in a telephone interview that "in terms of the millions of boxes sold over the past 10 years, the number of complaints has been statistically negligible."

"The complaints," he added, "have resulted from misuse due to failure to observe instructions carefully printed on each box."

Thomas Desmond, head of Purax' grocery products division, described the ingredient to which FDA objected as "relatively mild ... noninjurious."

He said, however, that it is being replaced with an even milder substance.

Desmond and Gale said their firms did not intend to recall bubble bath presently on supermarket or drug store shelves.

FDA's Weissler said both brands had been found to contain high levels of alkylaryl sulfonates, which he said are powerful enough to clean children without scrubbing yet still keep a ring from forming in bathtubs.

"But perhaps their very effectiveness as detergents makes them less safe," said Weissler.

Weissler said the FDA concern was prompted by complaints on the two specific products. The agency will now begin a survey of other bubble baths to see if they contain high levels of the same substance, he said.

Actor Visiting in Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — Actor Fess Parker arrived today aboard a chartered plane laden with Christmas trees and turkeys for U.S. troops in South Vietnam.

"I just wish we'd never gotten in over here," Parker told newsmen. "I'd just as soon we loaded everything on trucks and moved home."

Parker will tour U.S. bases distributing the plane's cargo.

Mayors of 10 Cities Rate President

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — A survey of 10 mayors of major cities finds more than half rate President Nixon's performance on behalf of cities as less than satisfactory. But nearly all give him high marks for his federal revenue sharing and welfare reform proposals.

There was general approval of Nixon's "new federalism" plan to return power from the federal government to state and city governments. The criticism was that the President had failed to produce legislation and appropriations to meet the scope of city problems.

The mayors, interviewed by The Associated Press during the 47th annual congress of the National League of Cities which ended Thursday, were asked to characterize Nixon's efforts in urban policy during his first two years in office, with emphasis on what pleased them most and what they most wanted to see changed.

Here are highlights of their replies:

John V. Lindsay, Republican of New York: "The most encouraging thing is the beginning of welfare reform and the beginnings of tax sharing."

"But we still need a whole new look at the priorities of the country in order to make sure that the people in our cities and suburbs don't remain embattled."

Richard G. Lugar, Republican of Indianapolis, Ind., elected president of the league: "The President has attempted to bring more vigor to the federal system by discussing how power might flow from Washington to states and local governments, going beyond merely a philosophical discussion to propose specifically revenue sharing. This offers great promise."

"If one were to make any criticism it seems to me that domestic programs of the administration have sometimes been overtaken by international events of very considerable consequence which is understandable in the world we live in."

Joseph Alioto, Democrat of San Francisco: "I don't think cities are an important enough priority so far as the administration is concerned."

"One very, very fine thing they've done is recognize how bad our welfare system is and they have attempted the first real reform of welfare."

Explosion on U. of Kansas Injuries 3

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — an explosion damaged the computer center and injured three students on the University of Kansas campus Friday night three minutes after a telephoned warning of a bomb.

A university spokesman estimated the loss at $10,000.

John K. Seitz, night supervisor of the computer service, said a man's voice came on the main campus telephone line at 10:57 p.m. and stated:

"There's a bomb in the machine room. It's set to go off in three minutes. This is no joke."

At 11 p.m. the explosion occurred in an outside stairwell, with a concrete block wall between it and the machine room.

One of the injured was standing in the hall about 30 feet from the outside door and the other two were in the stairwell, unaware that the bomb was behind some cardboard boxes near them, Seitz said.

The three victims were treated at a hospital for concussion and were released. They were Carol Duster, Victor Harrison and Vernon S. Breit. All were student-employees of the center.

The $3.5-million computer sustained some damage. Seitz said, but continued operating through the explosion. The most damage, he said, was to 300 users' tapes stored in racks along the machine room wall next to the stairwell.

An investigator said he believed it was a pipe bomb.

The center is on the ground floor of the four-story, $1.5 million Summerfield Hall, which also houses the school of business and economics department.

The computation center operates around the clock on research and university business.

Almost daily incidents have occurred on the campus since the Black Student Union called for a strike Monday to enforce its demands that the Board of Regents rehire Gary Jackson, black assistant administrator to the dean of men.

The regents fired Jackson last July when Topeka police told them he helped buy 27 boxes of ammunition the day after Rick Dowdell, a black Lawrence youth, was killed by a city policeman.

Dowdell's death July 16 was followed by more strife and four days later a white youth was shot to death as police tried to disperse a crowd of dissident youths.

Last Monday, a white student was shot in the neck as he demonstrated with two black youths who were painting the word "strike" on a wall of Watkins Library.

Ordinances Would Hike Pay at NLR

NORTH LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Two proposed ordinances that would increase the salaries of the mayor, city clerk and aldermen were filed jointly Thursday by seven North Little Rock aldermen at the city clerk's office.

One ordinance proposes an increase in the mayor's salary from $5,000 to $15,000 and proposes a $3,600 a year salary increase for the city clerk.

The other ordinance calls for a $100-a-month pay increase for aldermen and a $20-a-month car allowance hike.

None of the seven aldermen who signed the proposed ordinance raising their own salaries and car allowances would say who initiated the measure.

Travis Hartwick said he initiated the proposed ordinance raising the salaries of the mayor and city clerk. "Whoever should aspire to be mayor or city clerk should not be expected to lose money by serving in an official capacity," Hartwick said.

Fire Insurance Rate Hike Asked

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner A. Gene Sykes took under advisement Thursday a request by the Arkansas Inspection and Rating Bureau for an increase in fire and extended coverage insurance rates.

Sykes said he would not make a decision on the application until after Jan. 1.

The bureau represents about 70 per cent of the companies that write fire and extended coverage insurance in Arkansas. The proposed rate increase does not apply to homeowners' policies. It would be 25 per cent for dwellings that are not occupied by the owner and an average of 16.1 per cent for the five categories of commercial property.

WR Trying to Make Smooth Transition

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller hopes for such a smooth change in administrations that Dale Bumpers will even have gubernatorial stationery with his own letterhead when he moves into the governor's office Jan. 12.

Robert W. Faulkner, Rockefeller's executive secretary, said it normally takes six weeks from the time of order to the time the stationery arrives, so the Rockefeller administration went ahead and placed Bumpers' order.

It is a small detail, but one of many being attended to in the weeks before Bumpers assumes command of the governor's office.

"I want to do the maximum I can to help Mr. Bumpers make the transition," Rockefeller says. "I know the problems he has got."

Rockefeller and Bumpers have conferred on the transition, and Bumpers aides have talked to the governor's staff members about the changeover and the functions of each aide's office. Mrs. Rockefeller and Mrs. Bumpers also have discussed arrangements for the Rockefellerers to vacate the governor's mansion.

The cooperation has extended to the governor's staff turning over to the governor-elect a list of legislative ideas and memoranda on possible legislation.

"There are several areas we were working on that they might want to pick up or revise," Faulkner said.

He said the Rockefeller administration also had given Bumpers an up-to-date list of what vacancies will occur soon on state boards and commissions and what appointments made by Rockefeller have not yet been confirmed by the state Senate.

Appointments produced one of the earliest controversies of the Rockefeller administration in 1967 when the Senate, ignoring Rockefeller's plea that he be given a chance to review them first, confirmed more than 90 appointees of outgoing Gov. Orval E. Faubus.

Bumpers has not said what request he might make of the Senate on the Rockefeller appointments. Rockefeller said in an interview that it would be interesting to see how the Senate will evaluate his appointees, since many are independents and Democrats, but that he is sure some will not receive confirmation.

"But I have tried very hard to find the right man for the job," the governor said.

In offering his full cooperation in making an orderly transition of governments, Rockefeller remembers that when he took office he found that Faubus had taken 18 filing cabinets full of papers.

"We started from scratch," Rockefeller said. "There was not a pencil, a paper clip or a pad in the governor's office."

Rockefeller said he was copying some files that he wants for his personal archives.

"We will remove nothing from the state files that will be useful to the successor administration," he said.

Fighting Heavy in Cambodia

By JOHN T. WHEELER
Associated Press Writer

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodian forces were locked in hand-to-hand combat with North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops today after a heavy enemy assault 38 miles north of Phnom Penh.

There were no reports on the number of casualties in the seven-hour battle at Prey Totung, one of the last major strong-points on the Cambodian government's northern front. But reports reaching Phnom Penh said the Cambodians had lost well over 1,000 men killed or wounded during the Communist command's current five-week-old northern offensive.

If Prey Totung falls, it would leave the government's northern front guarded only by positions at Kompong Cham, 47 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, and Skoun, about the same distance north of the capital. The government has no significant positions in between.

Bombers assaulted the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong force through the night and after dawn but apparently were not enough to break the heavy attack.

Cambodian artillery support is virtually non-existent because of a shortage of shells.

A spokesman said Cambodian paratroopers and Cambodians recruited and trained in South Vietnam by U.S. Special Forces were defending Prey Totung, a district town midway between Skoun and Kompong Cham.

As many as seven North Vietnamese and Viet Cong regiments are in the northern battle sector, having moved westward from South Vietnam, were they battled American and South Vietnamese forces before the Cambodian war broke out last March.

With the northern front in a shambles, two Cambodian columns pushing from opposite directions moved to within 12 miles of a linkup on Route 4 southwest of Phnom Penh, the capital's highway to the sea. But the toughest stretch was still to come, and the Cambodian forces had not yet attacked the North Vietnamese positions along the vital highway that leads to the nation's only deep-water port, Kompong Som.

The port has been cut off from Phnom Penh for the past three weeks, and there is a gasoline shortage in the capital.

In South Vietnam, Viet Cong forces ambushed a U.S. jeep today on Route 1, about 80 miles east of Saigon, and a U.S. Army convoy on the same highway 125 miles farther north. An American civilian technician working for the Army and an enlisted man were killed in the jeep. Seven U.S. soldiers were wounded in the convoy.

Brazil to Refuse Demands of Kidnaper

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Brazil intends to stand firm on its refusal to meet any conditions but the release of political prisoners in exchange for the freedom of the kidnapped Swiss ambassador, government sources said today.

The sources said the government would not meet terrorist demands for the broadcast of revolutionary manifestos or anything else that would affect the "dignity" of the country. The guerrillas, who abducted Ambassador Giovanni Bucher Monday, have demanded the publication of manifestos and the release of 70 political prisoners.

There has been no reply from the kidnappers to the government's position, the sources said.

Police said more than 1,300 persons have been arrested during the manhunt since Bucher was kidnapped, but many of those detained were released after they provided identification.
